Telephone or write to the Dallas Chamber of Commerce for information on Dallas or the Southwest. Dallas is the geographic center, and the center of density of population and buying power in the Southwest—a natural econmic unit which constitutes one-eighth of the national market, with one-seventh of the nation's buying power.

The Front Cover

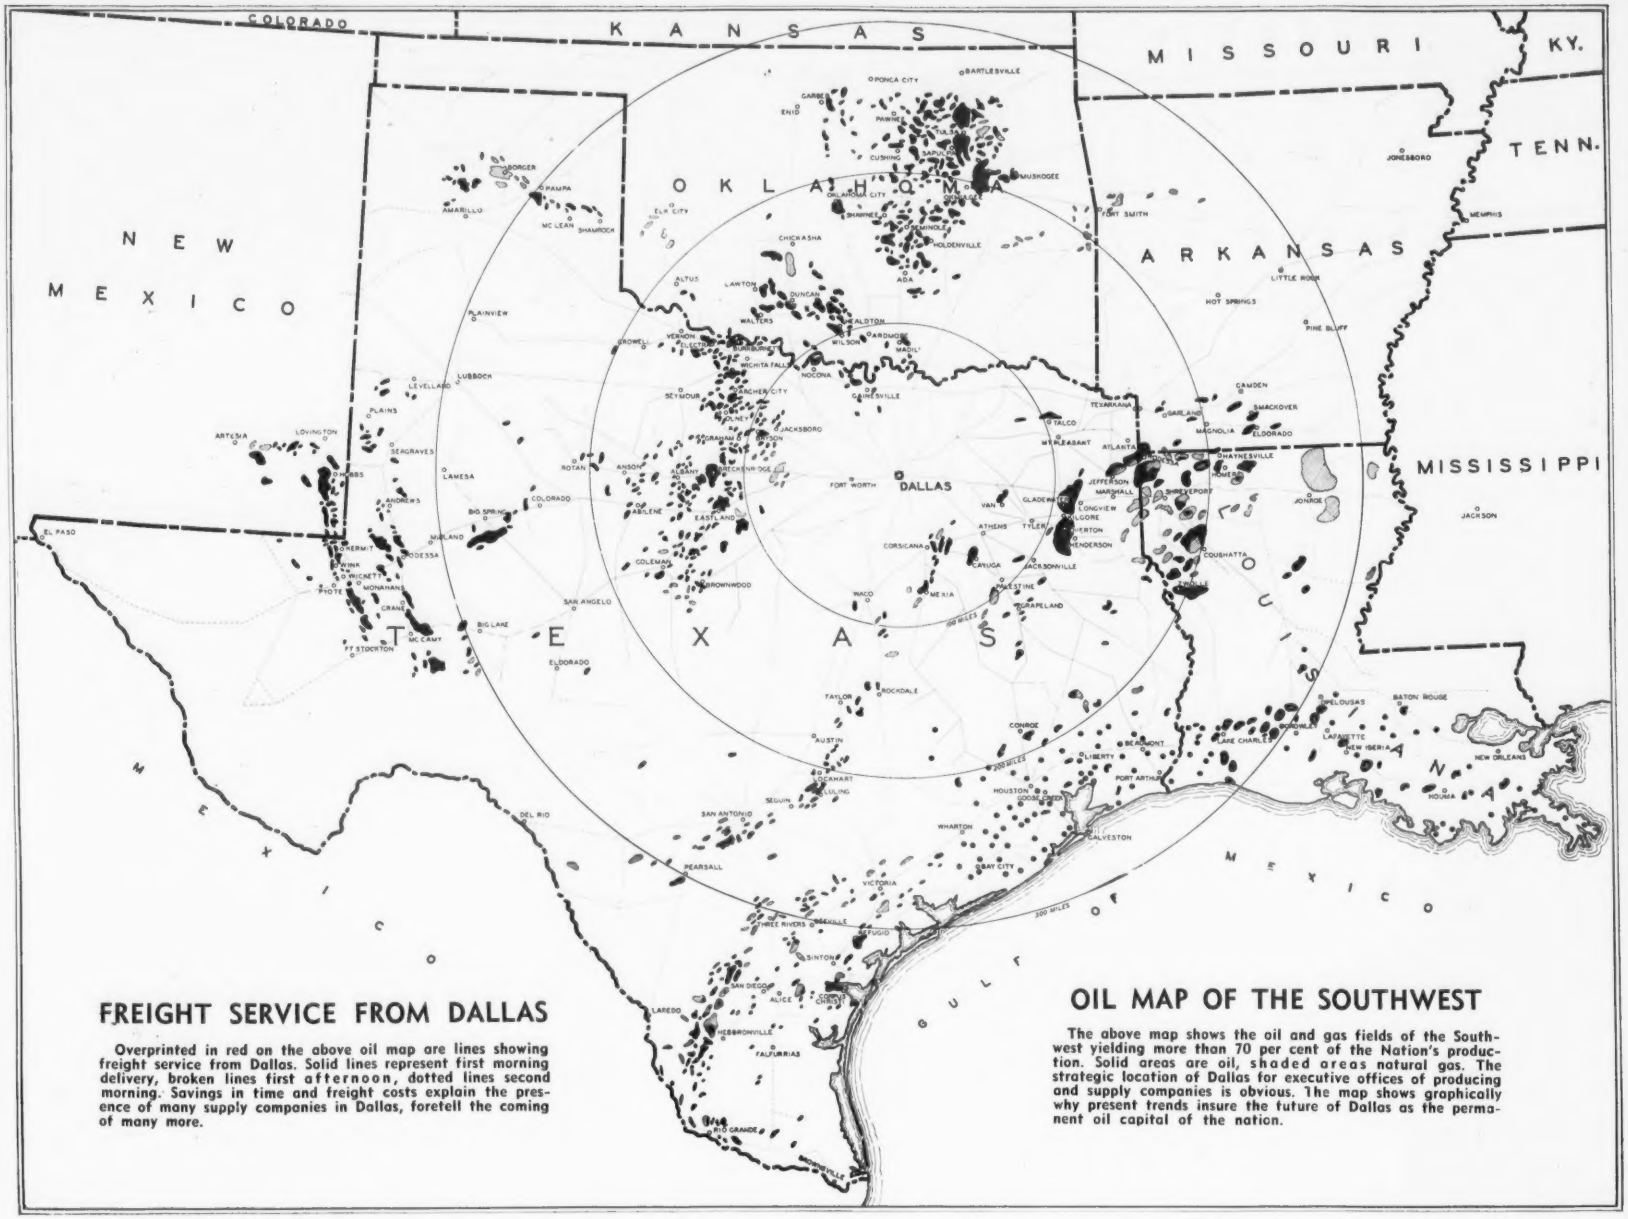

Southwest Business' front cover this month combines two timely subjects: Christmas and Dallas' position as an oil capital.

The cover design, by Parker-Griffith, superimposes an oil field, cut into Christmas tree design, on Dallas' Main Street canyon. It emphasizes the fact that Dallas is the permanent key city of the oil industry, dependent upon no single field or group of fields for its dominance, but centrally located to all of the oil and gas fields in an area which accounts for more than 70 per cent of the nation's production.

Needless to say, the oil industry has been a tremendous factor in Dallas' sound, consistent growth for the last two decades, and is expected to continue to be a great stimulus.

In this issue of Southwest Business, pages 21-52, inclusive, is published the new Dallas Oil Directory, compiled by the industrial department of the Chamber of Commerce. It lists, alphabetically, the oil companies, individual operators, and equipment and supply companies already located in Dallas. The industrial department invites correction of any mistakes that may appear in these listings, so that its forthcoming Oil Directory book will be complete and accurate.

FREIGHT SERVICE FROM DALLAS

Overprinted in red on the above oil map are lines showing freight service from Dallas. Solid lines represent first morning delivery, broken lines first afternoon, dotted lines second morning. Savings in time and freight costs explain the presence of many supply companies in Dallas, foretell the coming of many more.

OIL MAP OF THE SOUTHWEST

The above map shows the oil and gas fields of the Southwest yielding more than 70 per cent of the Nation's production. Solid areas are oil, shaded areas natural gas. The strategic location of Dallas for executive offices of producing and supply companies is obvious. The map shows graphically why present trends insure the future of Dallas as the permanent oil capital of the nation.

DALLAS... Permanent Oil Capital

DALLAS is the only major oil city in the nation that has never had an oil boom to stimulate its growth as a petroleum center. Since the earliest days of the industry, one city after another has claimed to be the "oil capital," and the "capital" has shifted from place to place as new pools were discovered, new fields developed.

Dallas is unlike any other oil center in that there has never been any important drilling activity in its immediate environs. Despite that fact, Dallas has grown steadily year by year, and has acquired many of the greatest producing and supply companies in the industry and hundreds of important independents.

In every other instance, cities that have gained importance as oil centers have developed mainly because of the discovery of oil near at hand, in some cases within their corporate limits. These discoveries have led to boom developments and for a time such cities have taken on the appearance of major oil centers.

Entirely different circumstances have contributed to the growth of Dallas as an oil center and to its national recognition as the key city of the industry. Supply companies, producing companies, individual operators, and many others connected with the industry have located in Dallas, not because of any one field or any one discovery, but because of the city's unsurpassed advantages and location for permanent executive headquarters.

Other cities that have developed as oil centers got their growth from temporary offices, the bringing in of drilling crews and other field workers, and the establishment by supply companies of warehouses and other facilities for serving the industry during the development stages. But when the play is over and the scene shifts, this temporary population moves to newer and more active areas.

Dallas has experienced none of this knd of growth. Its growth as an oil center has been due to its acquisition of concerns interested not in any one field or in a temporary location, but in all of the present and potential fields of the Southwest. They have chosen Dallas because every major field is quickly accessible and because trends in the industry indicate that Dallas will continue to be central with respect to all important developments in the industry for many years to come.

The builders of Dallas have held steadfastly to an ideal in all their efforts to promote the city's progress. That ideal has been quality. Efforts have been directed toward building a great city instead of a big city. And while the city's population is now rapidly approaching the 400,000 mark, nothing of quality has been sacrificed in its remarkable growth.

In its efforts to acquire new institutions, Dallas has sought those whose personnel enhances rather than pulls down living standards, enriches rather than impoverishes the cultural and social values of the community. Its plan of development has lifted the city to third ranking in the nation in family income, has made it famous far and wide for its magnificent residential districts, its hundreds of great country estates, its schools, its recreational facilities, its cultural activities. It has become the ambition of many persons to live in Dallas, where people know how to live and where every opportunity exists for maximum returns in the enjoyment of life at its fullest.

Seeking as it has done to build a city of quality, Dallas naturally turned early to the oil industry as one of its sources of the kind of growth it desired, for the personnel of no other industry fits quite so well into the scheme of its development as the men and their families who are associated with oil. And since Dallas, in greater measure than any other city, offers to oil men the kind of living conditions they demand for their families the attraction has been mutual. As a result many of the city's most valued institutions are connected with the industry, many hundreds of its magnificent homes are the homes of oil families.

As a tribute to the part oil has played in the development of Dallas as one of the finest cities in America, the Dallas Chamber of Commerce has compiled and is preparing to publish an oil directory, listing firms and individuals that have contributed to its advancement. This directory, along with a description of the Census Puts Dallas on "Spot"

By A. W. VON STRUVE

DALLAS is on the spot! Right now, representatives of the Federal government in the persons of enumerators for the sixteenth decennial Census, are calling on Dallas businessmen and industrialists, publishers and agriculturists, bankers and oil men, textile specialists and steel makers, wholesalers and corner stores. They also are making calls in every other part of the state.

The federal men are asking questions. Questions about power. Questions about equipment. Questions about payroll. Questions about products. Questions about finance, number of employees, raw materials, accounts receivable, expenditures, sales. Questions, questions, questions.

And in a few more weeks they'll be asking questions about YOU—personally. Who are you? Where were you born? How old are you? What's your occupation? In what kind of a house do you live? Is it supplied with running water? Electricity? Bathroom? What's it worth? How much did you make last year? Were you living in Dallas five years ago? If not, where?

Members of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce will be asked the same questions as Mayor Woodall Rodgers or City Manager Jimmy Aston. The mayor and the manager will be asked the same questions as the residents of Deep Elm Street, and the residents of Deep Elm Street will be asked exactly the same questions as the President of the United States.

That's real democracy in action. And that's why Dallas people—as in all other parts of the nation—are ready to answer.

These inquiries are not being made by any investigative body of the Federal government, nor by any agency interested in regulation or taxation. This time the U. S. Bureau of the Census is asking the questions. And it's up to Dallas, with its reputation of being one of the best cities in the United States for both the resident and the businessman, to prove its claim by actual figures.

The interest of the Census Bureau is strictly statistical. The Bureau has no regulatory powers of itself, and it is prohibited by law from disclosing facts about individual establishments even to other governmental agencies. Thus, it is assured that Census statements will not be made public in any other than broad statistical form, and confidential information will not be made available to competitors.

For the Census Bureau, persons and personalities simply do not exist. All it wants is cold, hard digits: Accurate figures, from which an accurate picture of the people and business of Dallas and all other American cities and communities can be drawn.

Dallas has grown tremendously in recent years. As a modern city, it has plenty to brag about. Recent unofficial estimates of the population of Greater Dallas (Dallas, University Park, and Highland Park) place the figure at about 340,000. In 1880, just sixty years ago and the first year in which an official Federal Census of Dallas was made, the total was but 10,358.

Ten years later it had increased 267 per cent, to 38,167. By 1920 Dallas' population had grown to 158,976. Within the next decade a jump of 63.8 per cent was recorded, to bring the city figure up to 260,475 in 1930, exclusive of the Park Cities. Dallas County's population in 1930 was 325,691.

Definitely, there is a reason for this rapid growth. At the start, the location had a fine waterway—the Trinity River. That shrewd Tennessee trader, John Neely Bryan, liked the site back in 1841—just ninety-nine years ago—when he hewed those first trees to build his little store. Bryan's choice proved itself when his log settlement speedily developed into an important trading center, with thousands of buffalo hides brought in by white and Indian hunters.

Then came other traders, travelers, merchants. Railroads and highways led here. A city had been born—Dallas, named after the vice president of the United States who had urged the admission of the independent republic of Texas to the Union. Dallas now is one of the leading cities of the country—the industrial, agricultural, financial, marketing, and educational center of a 400-mile trading area.

Other towns and cities, too, have grown; not only in Texas, but throughout the entire United States. Comparisons can be made, admittedly, and the people of one city can easily say that their city is better than somebody's else. But mere claims are not proof. Statistics, carefully and accurately collected by a disinterested agency, can prove claims. That's why the interest of Dallas in the present Census is just as great, or even greater, than the interest of the U. S. Bureau of the Census itself.

In order that local interest may operate to secure a complete and accurate Census of Dallas and the Dallas district, Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins has asked Mayor Rodgers and the Dallas Chamber of Commerce to cooperate with the Census Bureau in the various phases of the 1940 Census.

This cooperation was speedily forthcoming, and various committees are already at work.

Appointed by William L. Austin, Director of the Census, Washington, as Census area manager of the Dallas District is Mark Marshall, of Chico. His assistant is J. H. Newett, of Dallas. Each has completed a special course of instruction in Washington.

The Sixteenth Decennial Census is really eleven censuses, each complete in itself and being taken, or to be taken, on a nationwide basis. Already underway in Dallas and elsewhere are the enumerations of Manufactures, Business, and Mines and Quarries. In the Census of Mines, of course, are included oil and natural gas producing activities.

To begin in April are the "domestic" Censuses of Population, Housing, Occupations, Employment, Agriculture, Drainage, and Irrigation.

Big Dallas

The Dallas whose greatness will be reflected in the 1940 Census is shown in the remarkable aerial photo on the opposite page. It is the Dallas which is known throughout the Southwest as "Big D." It is the first city in the Southwest in retail business, in wholesale business, in number of manufacturing establishments, in transportation and communication facilities. It annually exceeds all other Southwestern cities in volume of banking business, postal receipts, air mail and airline passengers. It leads all other cities of the section in educational, cultural, medical and hospital facilities and in sports and entertainment attractions. Copyrighted photo, Lloyd M. Long.

SHAW'S

Desde el 22 de Enero al 9 de Febrero—

Por FRANCISCO MILLET

PROXIMOS ya al nuevo año y a las fechas de presentación de las modas y estilos de primavera y verano, que son desde el 22 de enero al 9 de febrero, creemos oportuno llamar la atención de los mercados extranjeros por la oportunidad que estas fechas les ofrecen para el sondeo de las posibilidades y ventajas que pueden encontrar en esta plaza en la compra de nuestros productos.

Al visitar nuestro mercado durante las fechas del 22 de enero al 9 de febrero les dará la oportunidad de realizar la importancia de nuestra plaza, pues también se aprovechan estas fechas para la exibición de productos industriales; químicos, maquinaria agrícula e industrial, etc., etc. En una palabra, es cuando se reunen en Dallas los hombres de negocio, comercio, e industria de los cinco estados que forman el gran territorio del Sur-Oeste de los Estados Unidos de Norte América ó sean los estados de Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, y Nuevo México.

Nuestros banqueros, dándose cuenta de la creciente importancia comercial e industrial de esta plaza cooperan estrechamente, organizando con bancos extranjeros servicios directos para cambios de moneda, giros comerciales, letras de cambio, etc., etc., indispensables para el desarrollo de nuestro comercio exterior.

Tan convencidos estamos de la bondad y variedad de nuestros productos y de las facilidades que este mercado les ofrece, que con gusto veríamos que una buena representación del comercio de las diferentes repúblicas Americanas nos visitaran durante las fechas más arriba mencionadas, aprovechándose de los retornos en gastos de viaje que los industriales y comerciantes les hacen en proporción al volumen de sus compras.

Deseamos además llamar su atención muy particularmente en que los gastos de viaje de sus respectivos puntos a Dallas son en muchas ocasiones muy inferiores a lo que serían si fueran hacia al Norte ó Este de los Estados Unidos. Por ejemplo, desde México, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, y Panamá se ahorran en venir a Dallas en vez de ir por ejemplo a New York $125 viajando en aeroplano. Desde Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela, Cuba, Haiti, Puerto Rico, Trinidad, y las otras repúblicas de la América del Sur su costo de viaje a Dallas es idéntico al de New York, ó quizás un poco menos, y considerando que en este mercado pueden cerrar sus operaciones comerciales con mucha más prontitud que lo que podrían hacerlo en New York, no cabe duda alguna que una visita aquí les puede ser de extrema utilidad e importancia comercial. Es por esta razón que con más interés que nunca solicitamos su visita, poniendo a su disposición los buenos oficios de la Dallas & North Texas Foreign Trade Association y de la Cámara de Comercio de Dallas.

Nuestra industria es variada, y entre los muchos productos que fabricamos hay algunos de extrema importancia, por ejemplo, productos químicos, farmacéuticos, e industriales, cosméticos, artículos de tocador y perfumería; maquinaria industrial y agrícula, tales como despepitadoras de algodón, separadores de granos y semillas, toda clase de máquinas para la construcción de carreteras, gruas, para refrigeración y acondicionamiento de aire, equipos completos para pozos de petroleo, elevadores, maquinaria para fábricas de harina, motores eléctricos y Diesel, maquinaria para empaques de fruta y vegetales, máquinas para levanderías comerciales y toda clase de utensilios y maquinaria para agricultura con excepción de tractores; materiales eléctricos, lámparas eléctricas; materiales para construcciones; manufacturas de papel de todas clases; pinturas y varnices; cementos y sus productos; productos alimenticios de todas clases en conserva; clavos y toda clase de productos de alambre.

En el departamento de comercio exterior de la Cámara de Comercio se recibe diaramente una gran cantidad de correspondencia pidiendo representaciones ó deseando ponerse en contacto con fabricantes de varios productos. Este departamento atiende a dicha correspondencia con la máxima brevedad de tiempo posible aunque en muchas ocasiones retrasa más de lo que quisiera en contestar ó resolver cada asunto por la falta material de tiempo. Creemos sería de una gran utilidad para las personas ó firmas interesadas en hacer arreglos con nuestros industriales de que vinieran aquí, pues sobre el terreno podrían cerrar sus arreglos con máxima prontitud y más satisfactoriamente que por correspondencia. Damos este consejo con fundamento, pues la práctica nos ha demonstrado su eficacia: la mayoría de los arreglos hechos personalmente están ya operando con toda normalidad. No es muy costoso un viaje cuando de él se sacan ventajas y provechos, y en estos momentos de urgencia comercial es la única manera para adelantarse a las muchas importantes comunicaciones que nos hacen por carta. Sin embargo, si un viaje a esta plaza no es factible por algunas de las firmas interesadas, comuníquense por correspondencia con la Dallas & North Texas Foreign Trade Association en la Cámara de Comercio de Dallas, la que les atenderá sus asuntos con interés y con la máxima prontitud posible.

Sería preciso para los que intentan visitarnos nos avisasen de su llegada a esta ciudad para reservarles habitaciones en los hoteles, evitándoles así molestias innecesarias a su llegada en ésta.

Dallas Invites Latin America to Spring Market Season

By FRANCISCO MILLET

IT IS important for our merchants and business men to know what the Dallas & North Texas Foreign Trade Association, in conjunction with the Dallas Manufacturers and Wholesalers Association, is doing to bring to Dallas during the spring market season, January 22, to February 9, 1940, buyers from Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, and the republics of Central America, and to increase the number of buyers from Mexico.

After a careful study of the feasibility of our hopes, and of the relationship of our aspirations to the traveling expenses incurred by buyers from these countries in coming to Dallas instead of going to New York, we have ascertained that by coming to Dallas by plane they would save in most instances $125 over the cost of the round trip to New York; in other instances the saving would be negligible. However, taking into consideration that here in our market they can complete their buying much faster than in New York, since our wholesale center is concentrated in one part of the city, the saving in time represents to them an appreciable amount.

We have hopes that we will see the number of Mexican buyers considerably increased, and we have reason to believe that some buyers from these other Latin-American countries will visit us during this market season, giving us an opportunity to show them what we can do for them here.

We ask the support and cooperation of every Dallas manufacturer and business man in a great effort to make our Southwestern market season also an important market season for our neighbor republics. This effort is too great to be handled by us alone: we must have the cooperation and assistance of every one of our manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers, and business men in general, if we want to lay the cornerstone of our foreign trade edifice on a solid and permanent basis. In our Spanish editorial addressed to our friends on the other side of our borders we have tried to tell them what we have here that they can profitably buy in competition with other United States markets. We also tell them how anxious we are to have them get acquainted with us and our products. It is our hope that they will not be disappointed, and we are sure they will not be if all of us join hands in this effort.

Jascha Heifetz To Appear With Dallas Symphony

From a two hundred-mile radius, reservations have been pouring into the Dallas Symphony office for the January 21 and 22 concerts which Jacques Singer and the Dallas Symphony Orchestra will offer with Jascha Heifetz as featured soloist. The distinguished violinist will play the Beethoven Concerto in D Major for violin and orchestra. Conductor Singer has chosen Weber's Overture "Der Frischutz" and the Sibelius Symphony No. 1 in E. minor, to complete the program.

Underwriting for the two Heifetz appearances is being done by Mrs. Harold J. Abrams, whose interest in the Dallas Symphony Orchestra has been an important factor in its progress for the entire twenty-six seasons of its existence. Her husband, the late Harold J. Abrams, served for many years as president of the Dallas Symphony Society. Mrs. Abrams, who has headed the women's committee, and acted as vice-president, is an active member of this year's board of directors.

The January concerts will mark Heifetz's first appearance in Dallas in ten years. Of this artist Deems Taylor, popular radio commentator, recently said: "It is given to only a few artists in any generation to achieve perfection, and Heifetz is one of those elect few. He has only one rival—Jascha Heifetz."

People and Payrolls

By

CLYDE V. WALLIS

DALLAS acquired seventy-three new business concerns in November, classified as follows: Manufacturing, eleven; wholesale, twenty; retail, twenty-six; oil companies, two; miscellaneous, fourteen. In the total are nine branches of national concerns.

One concern moved its national headquarters to Dallas—the Widlar Division of Standard Brands, Inc. This firm was formerly located in Cleveland, Ohio. It operates a number of pickle plants, including plants at Texarkana, Texas, and Wiggins, Mississippi. Space has been leased on the tenth floor of the Southland Life Building, and the national headquarters of the company have already been moved to Dallas and installed in their new quarters. H. F. Carson is General Manager. The transfer brought a number of families from Cleveland to Dallas.

The principal new firms that located in Dallas during the month were the following:

Manufacturers:

A. & W. Brands Company, 1300 South Akard Street. Manufacturers of food products (Potat-O-Pops). W. W. Ackman, owner.

Butane Equipment Company, Inc., 3006 Junius Street; manufacturers of butane gas equipment. Principal stockholders, James Jackson, Melvin W. Jackson and W. C. Whilden.

Dallas Chenille Company, 2016 Canton Street. Manufacturers of chenille bed spreads. J. J. Gibson, owner.

Dallas Machine & Engineering Works, 5219 Maple Avenue; H. O. Lown, owner. Plant moved to Dallas from Smackover, Arkansas, and will specialize in all kinds of repair work, machine shop work, heavy forging, blacksmithing, tank work, etc. Much of the company's business is with the oil industry.

Johnson Gilmore Manufacturing Company, 700 South Ewing Avenue. Woodwork manufacturers.

Milco Novelty Company, Inc., 3101 North Harwood Street; manufacturers of artificial flowers, costume and novelty jewelry. R. Q. Mills, President.

Premier Publishing Company, 222 Allen Building; publishers.

Quick Foods Company, 5015 Elm Street. Manufacturers of food products—"Quik" ready-mixed pie pastry, filling and meringue.

Ross Machine Works, 4224 Ross Avenue. Machine shop.

DON'T GIVE A COLD AN EVEN BREAK!

DURING the common cold months, or winter season, it is especially important to take every precaution to protect your health. Quick changes of temperature should be avoided. Sudden changes of temperature, such as occur when going from a warm room into a cold one, make it easy for you to "catch cold." Don't give a common cold an even break.

Prevention is the best remedy. However, if you should catch cold, consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

For your health's sake, and to obtain the greatest value from the fuel you use, heat your entire house and provide adequate ventilation during the short winter season.

Oil Men Like Dallas

One of the key retail markets of the nation, Dallas has an annual retail sales volume of more than $150,000,000. The city's high per capita buying power acounts in part for the high ratio of retail sales to population, although many shoppers travel hundreds cf miles from other big cities to buy in Dallas' stores. The magazine Sales Management, in its latest annual buying power survey, ranked Dallas third in the nation in effective buying income per family ($3,582) and second in effective buying income per white family ($3,966). At left, above, is Dallas' Main Street canyon, with its big banks, insurance and oil company buildings, its retail stores and shops. At right, top, is the Federal Reserve Bank of the eleventh district, in Dallas; and below is the Dallas Cotton Exchange. Parker-Griffith Photos.

Biggest annual exposition in America is the State Fair of Texas in Dallas. The fifty-first annual State Fair in 1939 attracted a total attendance of 1,036,708 during a sixteen-day period. The Fair is held each October, occupying a $15,000,000 permanent exposition plant which is a municipal park throughout the year except for the Fair period. The State Fair of Texas is not subsidized by city, county, state or Federal funds. It was built entirely through the enterprise of Dallas and Texas business men and is operated as a non-profit-making corporation. In its fifty-one years of operation, it has had far-reaching influence upon the development of the Southwest. The magnificent Esplanade of State, with the Texas Hall of State in the background, is shown above. Lloyd M. Long photo.

Among the Manufacturers

"If Dallas is to grow it must develop industrially." You have heard this said until it has no meaning; until it is so trite that you pass it by as you do a corner that you pass each day. This slogan, for so it has become, should be recast. As it stands it is misleading and it would be more accurate to say: "If Dallas is to grow it must keep on developing industrially." Every new month finds Dallas building new factories, new buildings, increasing its manufacturing output, and local capital seeking investment in Dallas industry. Each month SOUTHWEST BUSINESS brings to the attention of local people and the Nation as a whole industries in Dallas as pictured on this page.

Three Important Meetings Held In December

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce and two other organizations in whose work the Chamber of Commerce is vitally interested held their annual membership meetings early in December.

Record crowds attended the annual meetings of the Chamber of Commerce December 5, and of the Trinity Improvement Association December 14. The third meeting was that of the Dallas Manufacturers and Wholesalers Association, a division of the Chamber, whose audience also set a new record.

Nearly 1,300 persons attended the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, heard a keynote report by President J. B. Adoue, Jr., heard a financial report by Chairman E. P. Simmons of the budget and finance committee, and received copies of the published report, WORK. The remainder of the program was devoted to a unique feature, "People of Dallas", presented by the Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with Radio Station WFAA.

"People of Dallas", dramatized and staged like a radio broadcast, brought to the Chamber's annual meeting five men and two women, whose stories and experiences dovetailed into a broad-visioned picture of Dallas. The participants, chosen by a committee composed of Paul Carrington, Harry S. Moss and Henry Miller, were: Hugh Prather, Sr., pioneer realtor; Charles Singleton, business executive; Mrs. Dave McManus, newcomer; City Manager Jimmy Aston; Vincent Baker, president of the S.M.U. student body; Margaret Tallichet (Mrs. William Wyler), Dallas-born movie star; and W. J. Morris, business executive whose own experience served as an example of the work of the Chamber of Commerce.

The WFAA orchestra, under direction of Karl Lambertz, furnished the musical background for "People of Dallas". A transcription of the program was made as it was presented at the meeting, and was broadcast later in the evening by WFAA.

"People of Dallas" was enthusiastically received, and has brought numerous comments to the Chamber of Commerce.

At the annual meeting of the Manufacturers and Wholesalers Association, President George F. Pierce reviewed the division's work in 1939 and outlined a broad program for the future. As an unusual entertainment feature, Coach Matty Bell of S.M.U. showed the audience his movies of the S.M.U.-Notre Dame football game.

A capacity audience at the annual meeting of the Trinity Improvement Association represented Dallas, Fort Worth and scores of other cities in the Trinity River watershed. Delegations also attended from Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma. The meeting was underlaid with a feeling that the long-sought flood control-soil conservation-navigation program for the Trinity watershed will soon begin to be realized. The U. S. Department of Agriculture and the army corps of engineers have just completed an exhaustive survey of the entire watershed, requiring more than a year and a half and costing some $300,000.

Speakers at the Trinity Improvement Association's banquet included U. S. Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally, Major General Julian L. Schley, chief of U. S. army engineers, and President John W. Carpenter of the Trinity Improvement Association. Amon Carter of Fort Worth, chairman of the board of the association, presided at the meeting.

In the January issue, Southwest Business will publish a comprehensive article on the status of the Trinity improvement program.

Two Ad Agencies Are Consolidated

The Edwards-Johnson and Calder-Campbell advertising agencies were consolidated December 1, to create the Calder, Johnson, Campbell & Edwards Agency with offices on the seventeenth floor of the Gulf States Building.

Jack W. Edwards is president of the new agency, Stanley Campbell is executive vice president, Frank Calder is secretary-treasurer and art director. Samuel Pace Johnson is the fourth member of the firm. All members of the firm are men of long experience in advertising agency work.

Mr. Edwards was formerly associated with his father in the Edwards Advertising Agency. Mr. Campbell was formerly advertising manager of the Portland Cement Association; and for four years he was in charge of advertising production for the Texas Power and Light Co. Mr. Calder was formerly art director of the Zeese Engraving Co., Dallas, and later operated his own art studio.

Among the accounts handled by the new agency are those of the Texas Power and Light Co., Dallas Building and Loan Association, Morten Laboratories, American Laundry and Cleaning Co., Dallas Railway and Terminal Co., Wilkins Travel Goods Co., C. S. O. Laboratories, Fleming Paper Mills, Page Boy Co., Hawley Manufacturing Co., The Haggar Co., St. Clair Food Products Co. of McAllen, Russell Underwear Manufacturing Co. of Denton.

OIL The Most Import

The Keystone of this reg and prosperity in Forty years ago the Southwest was still a frontier country. It was sparsely settled. It depended upon agriculture, livestock raising and lumbering for its livelihood. It had no big cities. It had few attractions for industry.

Today the Southwest is the fastest growing region in America. It has great cities, and even its smaller cities have doubled and trebled in population. Its buying power has more than kept pace with the increase in population. It has come through the worst depression in history with so few scars that people in other regions say enviously, "You didn't even have a depression down there". Population and buying power have made the Southwest today one of America's major markets—and industry is moving Southwestward to serve this great market from within.

Why has this transformation come to the Southwest?

No single explanation can be given, of course. But much of the change can be traced directly to the petroleum industry—an industry which is concentrated largely in the Southwest; an industry which affects vitally the lives of every man, woman and child in the Southwest.

Forty years ago the oil industry was just in its infancy. Today, its cumulative investments in Texas alone will probably total $8,000,000,000. The oil industry has been the very keystone of this region's development and prosperity in recent years. It has stimulated emigration into the Southwest from the older sections of America; it has created payrolls to support this increased population; and the population increase, in turn, has created more business for the merchant, the banker, the insurance man, the manufacturer, the transportation agencies.

The Southwest would have obtained this growth ultimately, it is true. But the oil industry brought population and buying power far more rapidly than could have been foreseen at the turn of the century. It provided an additional diversification to balance the Southwest's dependence upon agriculture, livestock raising and lumbering. It has brought the Southwest to the point that it is the most attractive region in America for industry today, to the point that it holds greater promise for future development than any other section of the country.

Today, the oil industry is the greatest single source of wealth in the Southwest. Oil has replaced cotton as the economic king. It is conservatively estimated that more than 200,000 families in Texas alone are directly dependent upon the oil industry for their livelihood. Hundreds of thousands of others are indirectly dependent—because the margin of buying power provided by the oil industry has made, and maintains, the payrolls on which they exist. Taxes paid by the industry—direct and indirect, obvious and hidden—are so many and so great that practically every unit of government would be crippled if its revenues from the oil industry were cut off.

The oil industry is still young. The Southwest is still young. Together, they can achieve great things in the future.

Oil Directory

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

Dallas Chamber of Commerce

On the following pages are published the alphabetical listings of oil companies, individual operators, and equipment and supply companies with offices in Dallas. The Dallas Oil Directory has been prepared as a tribute to the part that oil has played in the development of Dallas as one of the finest cities in America. It will also be used as the basis of a campaign to bring additional units of the oil industry to Dallas.

Southwest Business publishes the directory to give opportunity for correction of any mistakes that may appear in it, and to give members of the Chamber of Commerce an opportunity to see the kind of work that is being done in this field. The Directory will be published in book form, with classified listings as well as the three listings which appear here, early in 1940.

New Car Sales Show 53% Increase

Dr. J. H. Connell, secretary of the Dallas Automotive Trades Association, has analyzed new car sales in Dallas and other major cities during the year, with interesting results.

Through October 31, 11,737 new automobiles, excluding trucks and commercial cars, had been registered in Dallas County. Through September 30, total passenger car sales in other cities were as follows: Atlanta, 10,060; Kansas City, 11,587; Rochester, 10,112; Toledo, 6,829; Cincinnati, 11,652; and Memphis, 7,805. The increase for the nation as a whole, the first nine months of 1939 compared with the first nine months of 1938, was 45 per cent while Dallas' increase was 53 per cent.

American Beauty Co. Issues Cover Samples

The American Beauty Cover Co. has produced an elaborate set of samples illustrating loose leaf and bound book covers of all kinds.

C. T. Dean, president of the company, pointed out that the attractive portfolio of samples was produced to assist printers, lithographers and advertising agencies in servicing their various accounts. The firm sells through printers, lithographers and advertising agencies.

Clearing Bureau Aids Christmas Charities

Every city has its means of providing for the needy during Thanksgiving and Christmas—apart from the every day relief given by welfare agencies. In Dallas, the Christmas Clearing Bureau functions through Thanksgiving and Christmas giving information to donors about needy families and helping them to plan for these people.

This year over 500 families were cared for Thanksgiving through the efforts of the bureau. On file, this Community Chest-sponsored agency has hundreds of families to be placed for Christmas.

All names are submitted from the cases of welfare agencies as the ones in greatest need and the ones who have no chance to receive anything for Christmas.

By keeping records of the people helped, the bureau makes it possible to reduce duplication in giving. All clubs and organizations cooperating with the holiday agency by submitting lists of people whom they intend to help are assured that these people will not receive gifts from several organizations. The bureau telephone number is 7-6013.

Highland Park Bank Reports Rapid Growth

Opened early in November, the Highland Park State Bank is the newest addition to the banking picture of Greater Dallas. Carney H. Dowlen is president of the bank.

With its first day's deposits totaling more than twice its capital, the bank has been adding daily to its deposits and anticipates having more than $500,000 on deposit shortly after the first of the year, Mr. Dowlen said. With less than two months' operation behind it, the bank is securing a good distribution between business and personal accounts and is making a growing volume of commercial loans, with a sprinkling of FHA loans on homes, he added.

An artist's sketch of the general interior view of the bank is shown above. In the detail sketches the artist has shown the bank entrance and the drive-in depository window included for the convenience of patrons arriving by automobile. The new bank is located at Preston Road and Mockingbird Lane.

Playing the Game

BY JOHN KIERAN

ABOUT a quarter of a century ago a letter was dropped in a post box in Boston. The letter was properly sealed and stamped but the only address on it was a large "6" on the front of the envelope.

The first postal clerk who handled it took a look, grinned and sent it on to the one man in the country for whom it was meant. No further name or address was needed. A large "6" meant "Bix Six", or Christy Mathewson, the athletic idol of his day and probably the greatest baseball pitcher this country ever saw.

Everybody knew "Matty". They knew that he had been born in Factoryville, Pa., of old American stock, that he had been a fine student and a great baseball and football player for Bucknell College, that he had risen to fame as a remarkable pitcher with the great New York Giants of old days. They knew that he had pitched and won three shutout games against the Athletics in the world series of 1905—still a record on the books—and that through all the years of his prominence and success as an athlete, no finer character strode across the field of any sport.

But the millions who cheered him in great games—and the now elderly rooters who remember the thrill they had when they saw him take the mound in any of his famous pitching duels with Three-Fingered Brown of the old Chicago Cubs—knew little of an even greater game in which Big Six showed the same coolness under fire and grit in the pinch that made him the master of the baseball moundsmen of America.

When his active days of pitching were over, Matty, because of his character and his knowledge of men and baseball, was made manager of the Cincinnati team. But before he could make his mark as a manager, the United States entered the World War. Immediately Matty volunteered for service and soon he was in France, an officer in the Gas and Flame Corps of the American Expeditionary Force. Big and strong as he was, long hours, bad weather and exposure to gas in the field weakened him. The influenza that ravaged the camps in France put him in a hospital. When he returned from France he was demobilized with an ailment that was diagnosed as "chronic bronchitis". It ultimately turned out to be pulmonary tuberculosis.

Then Matty, the courageous pitcher who never flinched in the fight and fury of a great battle on the diamond, knew he was in for the fight of his life—a fight for his life. And he didn't flinch. He didn't whine or complain. And above all, he didn't quit! He said he could win this game, too. All he wanted was to be told the rules. Then he would play the game—and win it.

So the doctors told him the rules. He had to leave his beloved game of baseball. He had to leave all his friends. He had to go away from home. He had to journey to Saranac, N. Y., lie quietly in bed, accept every order and follow the last details of the instructions of his physician. This to a man who, for twenty years, had lived in the limelight, had been cheered by millions, had friends by the thousands in cities all over the country. He had played that game and loved it. Now he was in a far different game. He didn't like it, but he would play it with the skill and courage and character that carried him to the top in baseball.

Matty went to Saranac. He and his charming wife, Jane Mathewson, took a house and Matty said to the doctor:

"You give me the signs, doctor, and I'll pitch the way you say."

His weight dropped some fifty pounds in a short time. Rumors of his approaching death spread over the country amid great mourning. But up in Saranac Matty, lying quietly and following the doctor's orders, repeated:

"I'm not licked; I'll win this one yet."

It was found that the disease was concentrated in Matty's left lung. The doctors administered artificial pneumothorax, of which it has been said that "no greater ray of sunshine ever has come to illumine the dark kingdom of disease." In time, and with patience, courage and obedience to the doctor's orders, Matty's illness was checked and brought under control. The celebrated patient improved, gained weight, took on color, rose to his feet and walked once more on his own legs. But to make sure, he spent another full twelve months in Saranac.

To keep an active interest in his life and surroundings, the man who had been a star on college gridirons, the great pitcher who had been the idol of a nation, took up—with his devoted wife—the study of birds and flowers of the Saranac regions. Incidentally, he followed these hobbies with profit and pleasure to the end of his life.

Up at Saranac one day they told Matty that he had won his big game, his fight for life. He could go back to baseball. But he had to be careful. In February, 1923, he was made president and part owner of the Boston National League team, the Braves of those days. For two years, with occasional Summer rest periods at Saranac, he led a busy and successful life as the president of a major league ball club.

But there was a responsibility attached to the position and Matty's own popularity helped to break him down again. He was wanted here, there and everywhere to make speeches or lend a hand to a worthy cause. From the St. Petersburg (Florida) training camp of his Braves in 1925, Matty had to go back to Saranac again. No flesh or blood or character or courage could stand the strain under which Matty was laboring. This time he didn't win the game. But he fought the enemy to the last foot of ground, all the way to the goal line.

Eulogies filled the press of the country. Baseball had lost an idol. A great character had passed away. But the lesson remains and the example of his first winning fight against a dread disease can, should and, indeed, must be an inspiration to those who are now or may be in the future fighting this same dread disease. Matty added years to his life through coolness, courage and intelligence

Dallas Excels in Homes, Museums

Every city, large and small, has some beautiful homes. Dallas differs only in that the attractive, well-maintained home in beautiful surroundings is the average, not the exception. Several Dallas residential sections are nationally famous. More than 6,500 new dwelling units have been constructed in Dallas during the last two years; and all construction contracts, 1929-'38, totaled $129,354,400. Of great importance to the home owner is the fact that Dallas has one of the lowest net tax rates of any major city in the country: $19.24 per $1,000, including city, county, school, state taxes (Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research). Seeing ahead we prophecy a very good year for you. May we serve you well.

when faced by one of the arch-enemies of Life. His intelligence showed itself in the way he trusted those who knew and followed their orders. His coolness showed itself in the way he went about finding new mental resources when the whole world was changed around him. His courage showed itself when all his friends had lost hope and Matty, saying it grimly and believing it firmly, muttered day after day:

"I'll win this game yet."

New methods of treatment have been found. Doctors and nurses are gaining on the disease. Time and tide and scientific development have brought in many aids in the great fight. Christmas Seals have played an important part of course. But, in a helpful way, no substitutes have been found to surpass the qualities that, within the patient, added years to the life of Christy Mathewson, a great athlete and a national idol: coolness, courage and intelligence.

If Matty had written out the rules for the other players of that great game to follow, he probably would have written them this way:

1. Don't lose your head; keep it occupied.

2. The doctors know; follow their orders.

3. You're not out until you're tagged. Never quit!

Texas Passenger Car Sales Total 58,348 In 11 Months

As 1939 passenger car sales mounted to 58,348 by December 1, a third more Texas families were riding in new cars than last year, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has reported.

November registrations of new automobiles totaled 5,565, up several per cent over the preceding month but a shade under November, 1938, sales.

Low-priced cars, bracket 1, accounted for the entire gain, totaling 3,360, up 20.1 per cent above October, while price brackets 2, 3 and 4 dropped 16.5 per cent, 4.2 per cent and 14.6 per cent respectively.

Commercial car registrations, on the other hand, gained 8.3 per cent over October and 14.9 per cent over November a year ago, to total 997 for the month. Total sales for the first eleven months of the year were 10,905, a jump of 28.6 per cent over the like period last year.

Dallas: Industrial Center

Dallas has no single great industry, but rather a wide diversity of manufacturing interests. In the metropolitan area are approximately 1,000 manufacturing establishments employing some 17,000 workers. Total annual value of their production is more than $175,000,000. Dallas industry has the advantages of central location in the Southwest, a wide radius of first morning freight delivery service (to a total population of 7,582,429), and the Southwest's greatest concentration of population and buying power within a 100-mile radius of Dallas. The industrial history of Dallas has been remarkably free of labor strife. Typical Dallas industrial scenes, left to right, and top to bottom, are paper, silk hose, meat packing and tin cans. Parker-Griffith photos.

...And Educational Center

Public school systems of the Dallas and Highland Park independent districts have sixty-five elementary schools, nine senior high schools, five junior high schools, and a public evening school —all carrying the highest possible scholastic ratings. Miss Hockaday's School for Girls, the Terrill School for Boys and the Texas Country Day School are among numerous prepschools and junior colleges. Southern Methodist University in Dallas, occupying a beautiful hilltop campus, is one of the outstanding universities of the Southwest. Baylor University's College of Medicine and Dentistry and School of Nursing are also located in Dallas—the only medical school between New Orleans and the Pacific Coast, south of St. Louis, which is not supported by tax funds. advantages and opportunities that exist in Dallas for other units of the industry, will be sent to every producing and supply company in the nation, and to every important individual operator.

The alphabetical section of this directory is published on pages 21 to 53. The purpose of its publication here is to give to the people and business institutions of Dallas a picture they have never had before of the tremendous importance of the industry to the city. Of secondary importance, the names of companies, individual operators and supply firms are published here, to give all those listed an opportunity to check their listings, so that any errors or omissions that have been made may be corrected before the directory goes to press.

The Industrial Department of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce would like to have immediately a written record of any corrections, changes or additions that should be made in the listing.

Editorials Laud Dallas Chamber of Commerce

Two editorials in Dallas newspapers, following the annual membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, pointed to the general feeling that 1940 will be a year of great achievement for Dallas.

The following editorial, "City of Opportunity," was published in the Dallas Morning News:

"Dallas owes a vote of thanks to its chamber of commerce. This alert, efficiently-operated organization has worked diligently the last year to maintain the city's enviable reputation as the leading financial and cultural center of the Southwest.

"Its results are best measured by the unbounded enthusiasm and optimism displayed by the 1,250 persons attending the chamber's annual meeting Tuesday night. Their sincere interest in the chamber's progress, their willingness to cooperate and work to make this city even greater in appearance and accomplishment is a tribute to the Dallas spirit.

"But Dallas can't stand still. The new directors—W. J. Brown, John W. Carpenter, Z. E. Marvin, Sr., John C. Massenburg, C. F. O'Donnell, Robert H. Stewart, Jr., and R. L. Thornton—have their work cut out for them. Canalization of the Trinity, merger with the Park Cities, construction of a downtown auditorium and other jobs remain to be done.

"In the words of Vincent Baker, young Southern Methodist University student, who was one of the seven persons appearing on the chamber's We the People program, 'Dallas is still young in spirit and ambitions. It is still primarily concerned with the future.' The City of Opportunity points with pride to its glorious past, boasts of its present and is confident of its future."

And this editorial, "Ready for Another Year of Achievement", appeared in The Daily Times Herald:

"SEVEN NEW DIRECTORS were installed by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce Friday, several of which have never served previously on the board.

"The rule under which no director can be elected for more than three years successively has the good effect of putting "new blood" on the board and of developing additional business and civic leaders.

"The members installed Friday were W. J. Brown, John W. Carpenter, Z. E. Marvin, Sr., John C. Massenburg, C. F. O'Donnell, Robert H. Stewart, Jr., and R. L. Thornton. Fourteen members were held over.

"The men who are retiring and the officials and staff of the chamber have reason to be proud of their achievements. The year 1939 has been one of accomplishment and progress.

"During the year, the chamber cleared itself of all pressing debts and is in position to welcome the members to a board that is prepared to go forward with new ventures to promote the growth and prosperity of Dallas.

"Congratulations are due President J. B. Adoue, General Manager Ben Critz, and all the staff members and directors, not only on the good work they have done this year but on their spirit of aggressiveness and optimism. Rarely has the Dallas Chamber of Commerce been in better position than it is now to fulfill its broad purpose."

Texas Factory Payrolls Top 1938 Levels

Keeping pace with the 1939 upswing, Texas manufacturing industries last month held number of employees and weekly payrolls to a level encouragingly above November, 1938, University of Texas business research officials said recently.

The University Bureau of Business Research estimates Texas factories employed 132,819 workers during November on average weekly payrolls of $2,568,507. Number of employees was 4.5 per cent more than in November a year ago and payrolls 6.4 per cent higher. Both eased off slightly from October, however.

In all industries, both manufacturing and non-manufacturing, employment climbed 4.6 per cent above November a year ago and 0.2 per cent above October of this year, while payrolls rose 4.6 per cent over November, 1938, but dropped 1.5 per cent from the preceding month.

GIVE 'EM COLOR

You can't give all
Your advertising readers
Rose colored glasses—
Of course you can't!

Even if you could,
Color in your advertising
Is far better than
Color on your prospects' noses.

Will open the eyes
Of even the color blind!

Southwest Business Salutes

the Leading Life Insurance Underwriters for the Month of November

Realizing, perhaps more fully than the average business man, the important place Dallas occupies in the insurance world . . . as the fourth, and possibly the third, largest insurance center in the United States, SOUTHWEST BUSINESS is happy to salute a number of Dallas Life Underwriters who are among those leading the parade of these most useful citizens and to quote for several months the tributes paid these and their fellow workers by a number of prominent men and institutions.

The Life Underwriter

He makes it possible for little children to have the care and companionship of their mothers, the advantages of education, and an even start in life. He enables men and women to look forward to old age as a season of harvest rather than of blight. He accelerates the wheels of commerce, advances the forces of progress and causes the sun to shine in places which otherwise would be dark.

We salute him! He is a Life Insurance Underwriter . . . America's Public Benefactor No. 1. — United Fidelity Life Advertisement.

Everts Urges Trade Unity Among Jewelers

Consciousness of trade unity is the chief need of the jewelry business, Myron Everts of Dallas, president of the American National Retail Jewelers Association, declared at a recent meeting of Arkansas jewelers in Little Rock. Mr. Everts was the chief speaker at a dinner given in his honor by the Arkansas Retail Jewelers Association.

MYRON EVERTS

"I believe that the jeweler, probably more than any other merchant, is an individualist", Mr. Everts said. "The jeweler thinks his own thoughts. He probably started this habit at the bench where he had plenty of time for thinking. The jeweler will continue as an individualist but jewelers, to solve their common problems, must have an appreciation of their industry and be proud members of it".

The American National Retail Jewelers Association is sponsoring legislation aimed at the elimination of misstatement, fake discounts and methods of misrepresentation through inference, he pointed out.

"This work of our national organization is a protection to both the public and the merchant", he added.

The national president reported on the work of several of the A.N.R.J.A. committees such as the Wholesaling-Retailing committee which has sought to eliminate misstatement by unethical merchants, the Trademarks and Standards committee which is establishing definitions to clarify terms used in the jewelry trade, and the Silver committee which is encouraging application of the Fair Trade Laws.

Dallas Insurance Agency Gets Honor

A. C. Prendergast of A. C. Prendergast and Company, general agency of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company at Dallas, has received announcement from his company that his office was a winner in the seventy-fifth anniversary campaign conducted by the company. In recognition of this accomplishment, Mr. Prendergast was an honored guest at a celebration dinner held in Hartford, December 4.
